Several state agencies, workforce investment boards, educational institutions, and localities have been considering purchasing licenses for a web-enabled database, JobsEQ, from Chmura Economics and Analytics. JobsEQ is a planning tool that provides region-specific economic indicators and workforce development data, trends, and forecasts.

To ensure that the best possible pricing is negotiated, groups with any potential interest are asked to share their interest and enjoy the benefit of the negotiated price.

If you are uncertain of your interest, or have not had the opportunity to see the product in depth, you are invited to attend a demonstration of JobsEQ that will be presented by Chmura Economics and Analytics. In addition, representatives from workforce investment boards that have been using JobsEQ will be available to explain how they have used the database as a tool.

A product description is attached that briefly explains the capabilities of JobsEQ. More information is available on their website (www.jobseq.com).

This is a great opportunity for agencies with interest in the product to partner together and learn about its benefits and to negotiate the most favorable pricing for licenses for JobsEQ.
